Monash University Coursework Scholarships

Monash University, as a way of encouraging and rewarding academic excellence and ensuring equitable access to a world-class education, is offering an extensive package of scholarships and bursaries for students in coursework programs. In 2008, the university will award more than 1000 new scholarships and bursaries totalling over $8 million. Lucy Bourke (pictured) Faculty of Business and Economics, chose Monash because of its reputation, and says she is relieved to be offered the scholarship because it gave her more confidence about going to university. "The scholarship is great, it means I won't have a debt and it will relieve financial strain on myself and my parents."
