

The Shepherd's Dog Iron and Wine

(Stomp)
Iron and Wine is an unusual folksy mix of tunes. The Shepherd's Dog is a band with Sam Beam, Sarah Beam, Patrick McKinney and EJ Holowicki. Their album seems a throwback to Art Garfunkel. The music is a mix of genres and sounds – it's soft but has a good tempo, folk mixed with a bit of alternative and a dash of blues. It works well and Sam Beam (lead singer) has a smooth voice. Recommended for: chilling out with friends, meditating, studying and summer nights.

Transitions Vol. 3 John Digweed

(Renaissance)
This is album is mix of acid house, trance and electronic. People who love clubs and raves will enjoy this. John Digweed mixes the tracks well, but the album is a let-down compared to the other Renaissance tracks. It's not as original as the other compilations and many of the mixes are quite similar. Digweed provides smooth transitions between each mix though, and it's hard to pick where each track begins and ends. Recommended for: raves, house parties and clubs.

Live at the Playboy Mansion Bob Sinclar

(Stomp)
Bob Sinclar takes control of the sweet sexy sounds at the exclusive Playboy mansion. Chris 'Le French Kiss' aka Bob Sinclar epitomises the glamorous Playboy lifestyle of a renowned international DJ. Love is definitely the drug of choice for this crowd of beautiful people. The selection gets a little deeper with Dennis Ferrer' Church Lady and the disco burns all night with classics. High energy, infectious music perfect for a bleary eyed Monday morning.

Super bad toilet humour

Think American Pie with ten times the toilet humour. In the movie Superbad Seth and Evan are senior high school boys on the hunt to get laid before they go to college. Seth (Jonah Hill) believes girls expect college boys to be 'experienced'.

It all takes place over a day and a half in the lives of Seth, Evan (Michael Cera) and Fogell/McLovin (Christopher Mintz-Plasse). It's a crazy ride filled with adventures that normal people only dream of.

This movie is filled with toilet humour and expletives – the 'F' bomb is dropped into most sentences. The characters are stereotypical nerds, secretly in love with girls who seem far beyond their reach.

Through fake IDs, fights, car chases and sex this movie is a classic American teen comedy. It's a great one to see for a few laughs.

2008 Auditions

Graduate Theatre Ensemble
Artistic Director Peter Oyston

A new one year Honours course in Drama at Monash University

The Centre for Drama and Theatre Studies and Monash University Academy of Performing Arts invite applications for its Graduate Theatre Ensemble. This is an intensive program of lectures, workshops and productions with professional teachers and directors for the study towards Honours, Masters or Graduate Diploma in Theatre. The Artistic Director of this new venture is Peter Oyston – until recently teacher and Director at RADA (Royal Academy of Dramatic Art) in London. Peter has been Director at Playbox and was the founding Dean of Drama at the VCA. His ambition is to create a one year academic performance course which will prepare students for a realistic threshold into the industry.
