

You're free2go

New year is upon us: time to make good on all those resolutions you set way back on New years eve. Do any of these ring a bell: be more organised, save money for that overseas trip, get to work and classes on time, get fit.

RACV's free2go program probably won't get you fit but will help you out by saving you a bit of cash and making sure your wheels keep turning.

Free2go offers 18-year-olds emergency roadside assistance cover in any car you drive or are a passenger in. What's more it's free - no catches, no contracts. So if you or a friend leave the lights on, get a flat tyre or battery, lock the keys in the car or break down the RACV patrolman will come out and take care of it.

If he can't get you going, the car gets towed and you get to where you need to go.

And if you're 19 or 20 the deal is still pretty sweet - you get all of the same on your vehicle at half the normal price, that's just $36.50!

But it doesn't stop there. All free2go members get free access to a huge range of motoring information and advice on getting your licence and buying your first freedom mobile. And for those of us who struggle with reading maps, check out the easy on-line driving maps and travel planners.

And if that hasn't wet your appetite, there's discounts at all our favourites; Jeanswest, McDonalds, Rebel Sport to name a few.

For all you need to know go to racv.free2go.com.au, call 13 RACV or drop into an RACV shop.

You'll have to come up with some other excuse for being late. ☹

Keep your license

If you're going for your car driver's license, make sure after it you get out of the parking lot before doing anything stupid. A student driver in the US recently passed his test, then immediately crashed his car into the Department of Public Safety building. We suspect he had to do some quick talking to hang onto his new license.

Escape the costly ways

Stylish, efficient, affordable is the catch-cry of the new Baroni motor scooters launched in Australia late last year.

Three models in the initial range offer a choice of price and style. The company expects the 125 and 150cc models to be the major sellers as they can go with the traffic flow and still deliver stunning economy of around 50 kilometres per litre.

Scooters are all about lifestyle, economy and convenience. The Baroni range has all of these and at a recommended retail price of $2695 for the 125 and $3450 for the 150cc model you can be on your bike without too much pain.

Free parking, minimal fuel costs, independence and fun are just some of the advantages of scootering and Baroni are confident that as fuel prices rise and roads become more congested, Baroni scooters will play a large part in the transport solutions of Australians.

Manufactured to the highest ISO 9001 international standards and with ADR (Australian Design Regulation) compliance, Baroni motor scooters can be registered in all Australian states and New Zealand.

The 20,000 kilometre or 2-year Australia-wide warranty shows the confidence the people at Baroni have in their product.

"Our philosophy is simple," Baroni manager David Jones says. "We are here for the long term. A great product, professional dealers and an Australia wide warranty will ensure all Baroni owners are happy riders".

Clean burning, low emission 4 stroke engines deliver power and speed. If you can ride a pushbike, you can ride a Baroni.

The 6 litre fuel tank costs around $8 to fill and this will be more than enough for the average commuter each week.
