Get into art

“Another chance to enjoy a day of special programs and free entry”

Get into Art! is an annual open day of public art galleries across Victoria. This year, 41 galleries will be participating with free activities and events on Sunday October 26 from 11am-4pm.

Victoria has a great network of public galleries located in nearly every municipality around the State. From Melbourne to Bairnsdale, Dandenong to Warrnambool public galleries will be running additional programs that excite, engage and encourage creative participation in the visual arts.

The free programs at Get into Art! give everyone the opportunity to meet with curators, artists and arts workers in a fun and relaxing way.

In Melbourne's CBD, six participating galleries are collaborating to provide a CBD 'passport' on the day, visit just three of the participating CBD venues and go in the running for a fabulous prize.

“Get into Art! is a flagship project for us,” says president of the Public Galleries Association of Victoria, Anton Vardy.

“It is a day which unites our rich and diverse network of public galleries. Get into Art! is a powerful catalyst in introducing a whole new world of art to non-traditional gallery goers. Whether it be meeting an artist, listening to a curator's talk, or participating in a special program, for many the Get into Art! day is the start of an ongoing connection with the gallery. For regular visitors it is another chance to enjoy a day of special programs and free entry.”

Now in its third year, Get into Art! is presented by the Public Galleries Association of Victoria.
