Order of Australia award

Outstanding community engagement and leadership potential has earned James Hicks a 2009 Order of Australia Award worth $40,000.

Hicks has been recognised as a promising future leader in his field and in community involvement.

A volunteer from a young age, Hicks has said he "tries to help out". His passion for volunteering began as a scout when he was encouraged to participate in the community.

Since then, he has been involved with a range of local organisations and currently devotes his spare time filming and editing the program 4WD TV on Channel 31. He said, "I work on the show any chance I can get. It's a great learning experience, and I can contribute to a community organisation".

Hicks is excelling in his Bachelor of Engineering/Business course at Swinburne.

As well as covering his tuition fees, accommodation, living allowance and other education expenses for the remainder of his degree, the scholarship will also provide Hicks with ongoing access to a mentor.
